

Celia Gorman

Multimedia Journalist and Editor

celiagorman@gmail.com

914 - 263 - 0112

celiagorman.com

Journalism Experience

The Local: Fort Greene/Clinton Hill (The New York Times' hyperlocal blog)

Associate Editor & Reporter, Sept. 2010 - Dec. 2011

Responsible for editing, reporting and writing, social media initiatives, cultivating community contributors, training teen contributors in video, and daily blog management.

New York Magazine

Fact Checker, 2009 - 2010

Responsible for fact checking the New York Magazine Online Bar Guide, Ongoing Event listings and assisting with special projects, such as the Best of New York 2010 Food package.

Population Council

Freelance Editor, 2009 - 2010

Edited project proposals, program reports, working papers and presentations for conferences, including presentations for the Clinton Global Initiative (Haiti) and the Nike Foundation (Beirut, Guatemala, Kenya, Liberia and Rwanda).

New York Magazine

Freelance Party Reporter, 2008

Reported at red carpet events and after-parties for online features.

Skills

Software: Final Cut Pro; Photoshop; Flash; Hype; PluralEyes; Pro Tools; Soundslides; InDesign; Office.

Online: Experienced with online research tools, social media and media branding (Facebook, Flickr, Twitter, etc.), analytics, varied CMSs including Wordpress, SEO, CSS & HTML.

Hardware: Marantz 660/620; Sony and JVC video cameras; DSLR video and photo.

Education

CUNY Graduate School of Journalism, New York, NY

Master of Fine Arts in Journalism, December 2011

Specialized in editing, new media, hyperlocal journalism, video, and health and science reporting.

California Institute of the Arts, Valencia, CA

Bachelor of Fine Arts, May 2006